

Job Language Kit
For Migrants

WorKit: Job Language Kit For Migrants

Migrants in the EU often face barriers when looking for a job in a new country due to insufficient language knowledge, low level of education, lack of local work experience, poor information about how to present themselves when applying for a job or how and where to look for a job.

Organisations from five EU countries (Bulgaria, Italy, The Netherlands, Spain and the UK) are working on the WorKit project at transnational level in order to exchange experience and help migrants with their labour market orientation and integration.

WorKit is developing a Job Language Kit for Migrants, along with on- and offline learning tools, which help migrants acquire employment-specific skills in the host country language and offer them on-the-spot language support in their job seeking. The product will be provided for free to migrants and organisations working with migrants.

helps migrants find their way to the labour market equips migrants with a set of language and communication skills necessary for finding and keeping a job transfers successful models and products and develops new ones for non-formal language learning of migrants develops a Job Language Kit for Migrants: an easy-to-use set of tools helping migrants apply for a job and providing them with information about local labour market opportunities creates focus groups with organisations working for the integration and education of migrants improves the capacities of organisations and educators working for the integration and language training of migrants develops a training programme for educators of migrants organises training workshops and language events to demonstrate the practical application of the Job Language Kit for Migrants develops a website www.workit-project.eu where all products are free to access

For more information, please contact [name and contacts of partner organization]

